NO. 6

Congratulations To the Tigers

The Texarkana College KENNEL would like to take this opportunity of extending its congratulations to the Texas High School Tigers for their fine football season, which has brought so much honor to the city.

The Tigers compiled an outstanding 12-1 mark this season, gaining the semi-finals of the state AAAA playoffs before losing in a closely-contested 28-21 tilt with Odessa.

Although they lost their final outing, nothing can detract from perhaps the greatest season in Texarkana high school football history, and for this the KENNEL sincerely expresses its admiration and gratitude.

Cpl. George Green Speaks At Regular Circle K Meeting

Cpl. George Green, from the local Marine Reserve center, was the guest speaker at the regularly scheduled meeting of the Circle K, Tuesday, December 7 at Bryce's.

Cpl. Green presented a film entitled "A War Within a War", about the Marines' actions in Viet Nam during the last year. The film relates the Marines' efforts to obtain the friendship and allegiance of the Vietnamese people. Originally the Marines were sent to occupy three bases in Viet Nam. These bases were then re-infiltrated by the Viet Cong. Therefore it was the added job of the Marines to win the confidence of the people over the propaganda of the Communist Chinese. In this way, food, medical care, and help provided by the United States and the Marines play as important a part in fighting the war in Viet Nam as artillery.

During the business meeting the various projects planned by Circle K were discussed. All the members are having their blood typed for the files of the local blood bank. Also the group discussed helping the Goodfellows in their annual Christmas drive to collect food, clothing, and toys for needy families in Texarkana.

College Board Test Administered at TC

A College Board Test was given to 113 students of this area December 4, in the Texarkana College Classroom Building.

Dr. C. Michael Ribariu, Director of Guidance and Counseling at Texarkana College, was in charge of the testing program.

Freshmen Roll By Upperclassmen In Powder Puff Bowl

In the first Powder Puff football game, the freshman girls from Texarkana College came from behind in the last quarter to down the sophomores 24-20 last Friday night at Grim Stadium.

The game was sponsored by the Texarkana Jaycees and the Marine Corps Reserve to collect toys for underprivileged children.

The freshmen scored first on an 80 yard dash by Sandy Hobbs in the first quarter. The sophomores came back in the second period with a scoring pass from Barbara Shoats to Dana Massey to knot the score at 6-6.

Both teams scored again in the second quarter, and when neither converted, the score remained deadlocked at 12-12 at the half.

Susie Moss put the frosh ahead in the third quarter, dashing into the end zone after receiving a pass on a play that covered 47 yards. Again the try for the extra point was unsuccessful. The sophomores came back again when Cheryl City took a pass for a touchdown, and Gwen Vahle ran the extra point to put the sophs ahead 20-18.

In the final quarter Miss Moss broke loose on a 46 yard scoring run to put the frosh ahead for keep by a 24-20 count.

The teams were coached by Mr. Bobby Fox and Mr. Wayne Williams of the College physical education department.

Approximately 200 fans turned out for the game, and their response indicated that they enjoyed themselves tremendously.

Ex-Colonel James Briggs Finds Satisfaction in Education Careers

James D. Briggs, chairman of the division of business administration at Texarkana College, is now in his sixth year as an educator after retiring from the United States Air Force as a colonel.

Briggs came to TC last fall from Portland State College, Oregon, where he was an assistant professor.

Although his major interest is now education, Mr. Briggs was prevailed upon by this reporter to discuss the Air Force, where he spent 21 years.

Born in Montana, Briggs enlisted in the Air Force at the age of 17 as a private, and won his wings and a commission shortly before Pearl Harbor. During World War II he served three years in Europe and North Africa as a combat squadron commander. Briggs smiles when he recalls that during this stage of the war they "were so desperate for leaders that they made me a major at the age of 23."

He flew the first aircraft of the American Eighth Air Force across the North Atlantic, and at this early stage of the war in his words, "the secret of success and promotion was to keep flying and stay alive."

After his promotion, most of

his duties were of a staff officer. Later he saw service in Korea and participated in the airlift support of the French in Vietnam. Incidentally, Briggs thinks we can and should win in Vietnam.

Briggs met his wife, the former Willa Mizell of Texarkana, when they were both on duty in Air Force Headquarters in the Pentagon. Mrs. Briggs was a personnel officer and is now a Lt. Colonel in the Air Force Reserve. Briggs said that his wife is delighted to be living in her home town, and that he is very pleased with Texarkana.

After retiring from the Air Force, Briggs received his bachelor of science in business administration degree from the University of Denver and his masters degree in business administration from the University of Southern California. His major was management.

While on the Portland State faculty, he was a member of the Western Association of College and University Business Officers, the Oregon Society of Management Analysts, and served as a member of the Oregon Governor's Committee for Emergency Planning. He has written articles for the Texas Personnel Management Association, the "College and University Business Magazine", and a management manual published by the Air Training Command.

The selection of education as a second career came naturally to Briggs. "After all," he says, "it is another form of public service, and a highly important one. I have spent most of my life training and administering a constant stream of youth in one manner or another. It seems that I have been in one kind of school or another most of my (Turn to Page Two)

Editorials

Christmas, 1965

Christmas 1965 is almost upon us. This year, more so than in past years, it seems most difficult to get into the spirit of Christmas. At this very instant Americans are fighting and dying in far off places with almost unpronounceable names; men are busy designing more horrible ways of killing their fellow men; children are dying because they have nothing to eat.

In the midst of this, Americans are spending billions of dollars buying presents for each other. Perhaps this is wrong, perhaps not.

It may very well be that such years as this are the true test of Christmas—in an environment of universal joy and happiness, it requires very little effort to say, and mean, "Merry Christmas." Yet if a mother, with a son in Vietnam, can say this with a smile on her face, then the true spirit of Christmas is not dead. Because the gift of love and compassion is far greater than any that money can buy.

Growing Pessimism

There has been an ever growing pessimistic attitude from the student body at Texarkana College this year toward campus activities.

Since athletics were dropped at the college last year there has been a general spirit of not caring what goes on. The students are forever talking and griping about no activities ever being held.

Why did these students not attend the Intramural Football Championship last week on campus? Why also did they not attend the Powder Puff Bowl in the same week? Both activities were practically free to the students but there were only approximately 20 students at the Intramural Championship and only about 200 at the Bowl game.

If there is no better turnout at these games how could the student body expect college officials to even consider the resuming of athletics with the expectations of having no more than 300-500 students present?

Another example of the student body non-participation was the Miss Bulldog Beauty Pageant two weeks ago. It was probably on of the biggest activities that will be held on campus all year, yet there were only about 500 students in attendance, which is less than one-half of the student body.

Surely if anyone is of college age he can shirk his high schoolish ways and conform to college life, by this, supporting the campus activities which some of our students work so hard to make a success.

Concerning education, Briggs does not think too highly of the pattern of attending school constantly for a set number of years, then leaving school forever. He feels that in a rapidly changing world, one cannot keep abreast of developments in that manner. He approves of the idea that one should return to school to study at intervals throughout his life to further their career development.

Regarding today's youth, he suggests that they orient their planning in terms of a lifetime of learning, and he adds wryly, "Who needs to be victimized by a case of premature hardening of the intellectual arteries."

It's an over-worked statement, but it would seem that the Air Force's loss, was certainly Texarkana College's gain in the case of James D. Briggs.

Allanta Meeting Attended by Mrs. Keith

Mrs. Lillian Keith, chairman of the William Buchanan Department of Nursing at Texarkana College, attended a meeting of the Steering Committee of the Southern Regional Education Board, Collegiate Council on Nursing, December 12 through 14, in Atlanta, Ga.

As Chairman of the program, she also became a member of the Board of Directors of the Texas League for Nursing. TC Dean Addresses League of Nursing

Dr. W. G. McAlexander, dean of Texarkana College, addressed the Texarkana League of Nursing at their meeting at St. Michael Hospital Thursday.

His topic was "Some of the Things Happening in General Education." His talk included information on methods of teaching as well as comments on federal funds available for use in public educational institutions.

Dr. McAlexander, who came to Texarkana College in June 1965, is a native of McKinney, Texas. He received his B. A. and M. A. degrees from North Texas State and his doctorate from the University of Houston. Prior to coming to Texarkana College, he served as dean of students and registrar at Wharton Junior College.

The Texarkana League of Nursing is open to all persons interested in nursing, and its membership is not restricted to nurses. The major concern of the League at this time is the shortage of qualified nurses in this area.

Persons who are interested in joining may contact Mrs. Carolyn Gooch, president of the Texarkana League, Mrs. Elizabeth Willis, membership chairman, or Mrs. Lillian Keith, Texarkana College.

American Association of Junior Colleges Launch New Program

Washington, D. C. — The American Association of Junior Colleges is launching a five-year program in semiprofessional and technical education development at the community junior college level, supported by a grant of $782,500 from the W. K. Kellogg Foundation, it was announced recently.

Under the new program, member colleges of the Association will engage in a national effort to provide leadership in developing college grade programs to prepare men and women for technical and semiprofessional education related to engineering, the health fields, and to business.

Many studies have pointed up the rapidly increasing need for manpower in these fields, Gleazer said, and at the same time there is growing national concern for providing new opportunities for education beyond the high school. Community junior colleges already have taken initiative in meeting these vital needs, despite many obstacles which the Association's new program will attempt to hurdle.

In announcing the grant to the American Association of Junior Colleges, Emory W. Morris, president of the W. K. Kellogg Foundation noted:

"As you know, we share your conviction as to the need for expanding the efforts of the nation's community colleges in the area of semiprofessional and technical education. We are confident that the activities of the Association will make a substantial contribution toward meeting this national need."

Deeply committed to the community junior college idea, the Kellogg Foundation in the past has provided substantial support to the Association for its general program. In addition, the Foundation has assisted individual junior colleges in developing semiprofessional and technical education resources, supported a national junior college executive development effort at 10 universities, and has stimulated growth of two-year nursing programs.

With the Foundation's assistance, the Association will be in a position to expand its headquarters staff and to strengthen services to communities engaged in planning for new community colleges as well as to existing institutions. Three specialists in technical and semiprofessional education will be added to the staff, and panels of experts will be organized to study needs and problems.

"In the nation's fast changing economy, the requirements for trained manpower in appropriate number, with appropriate skills, and placed in appropriate occupations, present vast challenges to our educational system," Gleazer said. "Many of the technical programs represent more desirable lines of educational development and self-fulfillment for many youth and adults than do traditional post-high school courses of study."

With these challenges in view, AAJC will assist its member colleges in developing curriculums and programs, leadership and instructional talent, informational materials, and in improving liaison with the many governmental, professional and educational agencies that have an interest in occupational education. Effort will be made to bring about better public understanding of opportunities that the occupational programs represent, to stimulate experimentation, and to find solutions to financial problems that may hinder establishment of necessary programs.

Irwin, Pondrom Are Honored by Rotary

Dr. J. W. Cady, president of Texarkana College, has announced the Rotary Student Guests for December. The students receiving this honor are Pat Irwin and Joe Pondrom, both of Texarkana.

The student leaders are to be the guests of Dr. Cady to the Rotary Club Luncheon in December.

Miss Irwin is Editor of the BULLDOG, Business Manager of the KENNEL, on the President's Council, and a member of Samothrace. Mr. Pondrom is president of Circle K, vice-president of the Sophomore Class, a Student Senator, and on the President's Council.

Library Presented With Several Books

The Texarkana College Library recently was presented with a number of volumes concerning American history, music, and law.

The donors are Mr. and Mrs. Theadore W. Klein, of Texarkana, who presented a total of 19 volumes dealing with history and music to the library, and Raymond Anderson, a Texarkana attorney, who gave the library 40 volumes of "Texas Jurisprudence". Anderson pointed out that while the books are out of date, they should prove interesting to students of law and others concerned with the study of past laws of Texas.

It is so easy to drift back to sink,
So hard to live abreast of what you think.

The noblest question in the world is what good can I do in it.

'Is This All I Get?'

Pat Kelly talks things over with ole Santa while he visited the Student Senate meeting last week. Santa passed out Christmas stockings full of candy to all the Student Senators. Santa also presented a gold key chain to Mr. C. O. Pinkerton for his sponsorship in the Student Senate this year. Senate Vice President Bobby Minton played Santa Claus.

Pre-Registration Begins January 4

Pre-registration for second semester classes is set to begin January 4, according to Dr. W. G. McAlexander, Academic Dean of Texarkana College.

The procedure, similar to the second semester of the 1964-65 term will consist of counseling by the Academic Dean, scheduling of classes with the Registrar, and paying of tuition and fees at the Business Office.

The pre-registration is designed primarily to accommodate those students needing special consideration due to outside employment. Students in this category should obtain a letter from their employer stating their working schedule before beginning their pre-registration.

If the grades, "D" or "F", were made by a student at nine weeks in a prerequisite course, he is not eligible for pre-registration.

Save 2 years, because now you can complete Air Force ROTC in just half the time!

Are you interested in starting a military career while in college—but afraid it will cut too deeply into your schedule?

Well, here's good news for you. Air Force ROTC now offers a 2-year program. You can start it any time you have 2 years of higher education remaining—whether on the undergraduate or graduate level.

Here's another good thing about this program: you get a chance to "sample" Air Force life before you sign up. During a special summer orientation session, you get to make up your mind about the Air Force, and the Air Force gets to make up its mind about you. Only when both are satisfied are you finally enrolled in the program.

You'll learn a lot in Air Force ROTC. The curriculum has been completely revamped. The accent is on aerospace research and development. But of course the classes are only the beginning. The important thing is that you'll be taking the first big step toward a profession of great responsibility, as a leader on America's Aerospace Team.

Find out more about the new Air Force ROTC program. See the Professor of Aerospace Studies today!

Bears Blast Headhunters 35-0 In Intramural Football Finale

By BOB MINTON
Kennel Sports Editor

Bright sun, cold wind, and the hot passing arm of Darrel Fincher stunned the Headhunters giving the Bears a 35-0 victory last Tuesday, December 7, capturing the Intramural Football Championship.

Headhunters, hungry for a win, just couldn't get the ball rolling or should I say flying. If ever the forward pass was meant to help win ball games, the Bears certainly made their use of it pay off. Little Fincher, running well and sending aerial bombs to Tommy Brown and Ronnie Green, proved too much of an air attack for the Headhunter defense.

Gene Bobo, Bears' mean center, started the scoring early in the first quarter covering a live ball rule fumble in the end zone. Extra point attempt failed. Bears lead 6-0. Later in the quarter a bad snap from center gave the Bear defense a chance to mob the quarterback racking up a safety. Bears favor 8-0. Bears received kickoff and Fincher carried his team downfield scoring on a pass to Ronnie Green. Extra point no good. Score: 14-0.

Headhunters had their best chance to change the dilemma with a covered fumble at the Bears fourteen yard line. During four plays the Bears defense held ground leaving the Headhunters scoreless.

During the last half Fincher launched the ball, skipping it across field like a young boy would a flat rock on a pond. Fincher to Brown to Green combo gave the Bears two touchdowns while Brown ran for two consecutive extra points making the score 28-0, Bears favor. The last TD of the game set up by a fumble was a Fincher to Brown to Hughes pass. Brown then passed to Hughes for the PAT. Score: 35-0. Bears victory!

The Bear defense played great with Bobo, Weldon Black, Donny Plum, Laird, on the front wall while Fincher and Brown batted balls down like swatting flies. Fincher intercepted twice, as did Brown.

Asked what happened to the Headhunters:

John McKinnie groaned, "A good quarterback and hustling defense," and Gene Dale said, "Well organized ball club, rough and lots of desire; good physical shape."

Intramural Grid Action

The Bears and the Headhunters go through their paces in the intramural football championship last week. The Headhunters, in the dark jerseys are shown launching an aerial attack in the second half of the game. The Bears held out to defeat the Headhunters 35-0.

TIDE OVER HUSKERS

Prognostications Reveal Upsets In Store for Bowl Offerings

With football's silly season—the holiday bowl time—upon us, the KENNEL's sports staff decided to join in the spirit of the occasion and predict the winners along with literally thousands of other scribes from coast to coast.

Before revealing our choices, let's take a look at the various offerings in the major bowls.

The most appetizing dish of the day appears to be the Orange Bowl, where undefeated Nebraska and once-downed Alabama tangle. The Crimson Tide hasn't lost since its first outing of the year, and Bear Bryant's teams are always a pleasure to watch.

In the Cotton Bowl, Arkansas, one of the three major unbeaten, untied teams in the nation, plays host to thrice-downed Louisiana State. This should be an exciting affair to watch, with three All-Americans—Glen Ray Hines, Loyd Phillips, and Bobby Crockett—not to mention seven other all conference players. The Hogs are noted for their come-from-behind finishes, and this could be a thriller!

The Sugar Bowl almost isn't worth mentioning this year, as oft-beaten Missouri and multi-trodden Florida meet in New Orleans in the battle of the also rans.

On the West Coast, undefeated Michigan State—ranked number one in the polls, takes on UCLA for the second time this season. In their first outing, State dumped the Golden State 13-3, and the Spartans are apparently stronger now than they were two months ago.

In the Gator Bowl, twice-beaten Texas Tech meets thrice-dumped Georgia Tech. Tech's Donny Anderson—a two-time All-American—should provide enough appeal for any grid fan in this contest. From this corner, this should prove to be a vastly more entertaining contest than at least two of the older, bigger-name, bowls.

Tulsa meets Tennessee in the Bluebonnet Bowl, and this is a clash worthy of a sellout crowd. Tulsa lost only to Arkansas and Oklahoma State, the latter a major upset, while Tennessee was dumped only by Mississippi.

Now that we've met the cast of elevens, here are the KENNEL's selections.

Orange Bowl, Alabama over Nebraska by 7 points.

Cotton Bowl, Arkansas over LSU by 14 points.

Sugar Bowl, Missouri over Florida by 6 points.

Rose Bowl, Michigan State over UCLA by 21 points.

Gator Bowl, Texas Tech over Georgia Tech by 10 points.

Bluebonnet Bowl, Tulsa over Tennessee by 7 points.

TC Student Senate Throws Snow Ball

The age old dream of that "white Christmas" was realized, if only for a few hours last night, by the students attending the Snow Ball.

A winter wonderland provided the setting for the Senate-sponsored Christmas dance, attended by approximately 300 students and faculty guests.

Music for this event was furnished by the "Rogues" from Henderson State Teachers College.

Wendell Jones, chairman of the decorations committee termed the dance a success and expressed his hopes to make the Snow Ball an annual affair.
